Eastern Agency Council Report

WELCOME MESSAGE

We are praying for all of our Diné people to remain strong, hopeful, and resilient during these challenging times. While the COVID-19 pandemic reminds us of our shared challenges, it also demonstrates how kinship, resiliency, and compassion connects each of us during difficult times. Unfortunately, we are now in a state of a health care crisis on the Navajo Nation, but we must remember that our people have stood against many adversities before, and we can continue to overcome obstacles facing our nation united.

As we observe the holidays, we encourage families to celebrate safely at home with only their immediate household members. Traditionally, we would gather together with relatives, friends, and community members to share meals and stories, but this year we have to protect our elders and family members with underlying health conditions from any virus infections. Staying home and taking care of our children and elders is the safest preventative measure you can do this holiday season.

We may miss our relatives and friends, but we must stay vigilant and safe. This holiday may be different, but let it allow us to be thankful for the blessings of our families and well-being. We must remain positive and encourage each other to make tomorrow better than today and to make the future better for our children.

During this time, consider and reflect on how our ancestors led the way forward through the practices of T'áá hwó' ajít'éego, or self-reliance, K'é, kinship, Tsodizin, prayer, and other principles during hard times. Our Navajo values and principles make us people of hope, faith, strength, and compassion. Therefore, we must stand united to combat the modern-day monsters that plague our communities.

With positive thoughts and actions, let us be the people our ancestors and elders need us to be in the time of hardship. They have blessed us with discipline, prayers, and teachings to move forward, and we have all the tools needed to ensure a better future for future generations.

This holiday season allows us to assist, comfort, and pray for one another. Comfort our people who have experienced loss this year and pray for our frontline warriors who protect us every day. We have to motivate each other as one people to overcome this pandemic. We can remind each other what we are capable of and restore and heal each other.

We can do this as we stand united because our ancestors have done it before. They have worked hard, sacrificed, and invested in what they believed would make a difference for us. That is who we are as sacred people. We are embedded with discipline, resilience, strength, compassion, and faith. In these moments, we use these sacred teachings to move forward towards a brighter and healthier future. Ahe'hee'

NAVAJO NATION EXTENDS STAY-AT-HOME LOCKDOWN AND REIMPLEMENTS 57-HOUR WEEKEND LOCKDOWN AS HOSPITALS REACH A STATE OF MAJOR CRISIS

On Thursday, Dec. 3, Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez and Vice President Myron Lizer hosted a virtual forum, in which several Navajo Area IHS medical and health care providers stated that the Navajo Nation is now in a major health care crisis and pleaded with the public to stay home and take precautions to help reduce the overwhelming surge in new COVID-19 cases and hospitalizations. As of Friday, the Navajo reported a total of 17,495 positive cases and 665 deaths related to COVID-19 since the pandemic began. The entire forum is available online at: <https://youtu.be/yfOg3RANG-A>.

Dr. Loretta Christensen, Chief Medical Officer for Navajo Area Indian Health Service, stated that we are “truly in crisis mode” as hospitals continue to receive more and more hospital visits and hospitalizations related to COVID-19. The current situation is leading to a shortage of hospital beds, oxygen supplies, medical personnel, and increasing wait times to transfer severe COVID-19 patients to other hospital facilities in the region that are better equipped to assist.

“We have been in a state of emergency since the pandemic began here on the Navajo Nation, but that has now elevated to a major health care crisis. Our health care experts are now saying that the current wave or surge is far more severe and troublesome than the wave that we saw in April and May, perhaps four or five times larger according to projections. Our medical experts on the front lines are pleading with all of our Navajo people to stay home as much as possible in order to reduce and isolate the spread of COVID-19. We have not yet seen the full extent of this second wave, but we do know that the severity of this second wave relies completely on our individual actions. Because of this unprecedented rise in COVID-19 cases, we are extending the stay-at-home lockdown for three additional weeks beyond Dec. 6 and it will include 57-hour weekend lockdowns every weekend through Dec. 28,” said President Nez.

President Nez and Vice President Lizer also signed a letter on Thursday, requesting President Trump and the Federal Emergency Management Agency to issue a Major Disaster Declaration for the Navajo Nation for Individual Assistance Crisis Counseling, Disaster Case Management and Public Assistance Category B (Emergency Protective Measures) including Direct Federal Assistance for all Navajo Nation Chapters, our local units of government, and all other additional federal services and assistance allowed under a Major

In addition, President Nez and Vice President Lizer issued Executive Order 011-20, to limit services and require Navajo Nation government and enterprises to remain closed through Sunday, Dec. 27, 2020, with the exception of essential employees as determined by division directors and enterprise management, to maintain essential services and functions of the government. This is due to the growing numbers of positive COVID-19 cases on the Navajo Nation.

“Our top priority is the health and well-being of the Navajo people and that should be everyone’s priority. We are at a crossroads in terms of keeping our people safe and healthy and mitigating the major health care crisis that we are presently in. The good news is that we, the people, have the power to turn this upward trend in new cases around and reduce the spread of COVID-19 through our own actions. Hospital medical personnel including doctors, nurses, and many others are overworked because they are fighting for all of us every single day. Let’s help them in this fight simply by staying home as much as possible to reduce the spread of COVID-19. Our health care providers are pleading with everyone at this point, so please continue to pray for them and to help them,” Vice President Lizer stated.

UNSPENT CARES ACT FUNDS ARE IN THE PROCESS OF BEING DIVERTED TO THE HARDSHIP ASSISTANCE FUND TO BE USED FOR DIRECT RELIEF FOR THE NAVAJO PEOPLE

On Wednesday, Dec. 2, Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez once again affirmed his support for CARES Act Hardship Assistance funds to be used for direct relief for the Navajo people. The Office of the Controller has consistently stated that the process of distributing the funds will begin in early December.

“First and foremost, I support hardship assistance funds for the Navajo people. My signature is on the resolution that approved those hardship funds and to allow other CARES Act funds to be diverted to that pot of money. When we first received the CARES Act dollars, our administration put forth legislation to provide direct relief by way of financial assistance for students, elders, disabled, and others, but that legislation was amended by the Council and those funds were removed – that’s a simple fact. We want to help as many of our people as possible by maximizing the use of the CARES Act dollars,” said President Nez.

He further stated, “the CARES Act resolutions that were passed by the Council and signed into law also included funds for water, power line, telecommunications and other projects that are bringing long-term benefits – these projects are getting done as quickly as possible. So far, thousands of our people have received electricity, water systems, bathroom additions, increased telecommunications access, and much more. We are trying to work through the internal processes to help as many people as possible through these types of projects and through the hardship assistance funds.”

The previous CARES Act resolutions approved include a provision that requires unspent funds to be diverted to the Hardship Assistance program, which is currently in the process. In regards to a memorandum issued on Nov. 20 that has since been circulated amongst the public, President Nez said the Navajo Nation has to show documentation and accountability for every dollar of the CARES Act funds that is spent. He added that the memorandum outlines the process and procedure to move unspent CARES Act dollars to the Hardship Assistance fund.

“The memo guides our divisions and programs to reconcile what funds are spent or obligated, what is pending, and to help determine an exact amount of unspent funds so that we know exactly how much will be available for direct relief to the people. This is being compiled into a Navajo Nation CARES Act projects close-out report that will be shared with the Council and the public. The fact is that all elected leaders are receiving calls and questions from the people, the enterprises, frontline workers, and many others who have done great work during this pandemic.

In order to process forthcoming invoices by individuals and vendors, President Nez said executed documents such as service contracts must be processed by the Office of the Controller to avoid potential legal issues.

“I signed off on many contracts prior to and the day of the November 20th deadline, but they were never placed into the system by the Office of the Controller for payment. Now we are working through the internal processes to avoid any liabilities due to the contracts that obligated funds. This is the first time that the Navajo Nation has received this large amount of funds at one time, so there are setbacks and issues that need to be resolved,” said President Nez.

“In the end, we have to remember that we are in this fight against COVID-19 together. As elected leaders, we should not be creating division among the Navajo people. Instead, we need to communicate with each other directly and resolve the issues and get these funds expended for all of our people. The sharing of misinformation must end now. I am praying for all of our people and our leaders because the only way we prosper is when we work together,” President Nez stated.

381 HOMES RECEIVE ELECTRICITY AS NTUA CONTINUES MAKING PROGRESS WITH CARES ACT FUNDS

Navajo Tribal Utility Authority has now connected 381 homes to the electric grid as of Monday, Nov. 30, using CARES Act funds that the Navajo Nation received to help fight the spread of COVID-19. Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez recently visited several NTUA work crews in the communities of Naschitti and Whiterock, N.M. to thank them for their dedication throughout the pandemic, and to visit several of the families who received power line connections, bathroom additions, and water cistern systems.

The NTUA work crews continue to work 10-hour days including weekends, to complete powerline, water, and telecommunications projects. NTUA's overall goal is to extend electricity to 510 families, which includes over 350 families that were identified during the 2020 LIGHT UP NAVAJO II application process.

"NTUA is doing amazing work around the clock, seven days a week. Their work crews are on the frontlines connecting many families to the electric grid and working with Navajo Engineering and Construction Authority and private contractors, many of which are Navajo-owned and employee Navajo workers, to provide bathroom additions and water cistern systems and waste water systems that provide long-term benefits and help to keep homes clean and families safer during this COVID-19 pandemic. I had the opportunity to meet with several of the families, many of whom are elderly, and they are excited and very thankful to be receiving assistance with the CARES Act dollars. We commend NTUA and we will continue to support them as they work to connect over 500 families by the end of the year," said President Nez, who also delivered CARES Act food boxes and turkeys to the work crews and several families in the communities of Whiterock and Naschitti during his visit.

In August, the 24th Navajo Nation Council and the Nez-Lizer Administration approved $13.8 million for power line projects, $24.7 million to increase overall electric grid capacity, $20.9 million for cisterns systems, $18.6 million for wastewater systems, and $32.8 million for wireless and broadband expansion for NTUA from the Navajo Nation's CARES funds.

NTUA is also making more progress with water projects and telecommunications infrastructure development to provide more cell phone and internet access for residents. On Nov. 14, President Nez also visited the home of Rose Begay, a longtime resident in Dilkon, Ariz., who recently received a new bathroom addition, electricity, water cistern, and wastewater system at her home where she has lived for over 20 years.

"We are very appreciative of the work NTUA is doing with the partnerships they have established with NECA and other businesses. We know that many families are struggling without running water and electricity so it's wonderful to see families receiving the relief that they need, especially during this pandemic. Our thoughts and prayers are also with the work crews, for their health and safety, as they continue working seven days a week to make great progress," stated Vice President Myron Lizer. The Nez-Lizer Administration continues to offer support for NTUA, NECA, and all of the contractors who are working hard to complete CARES Act funded projects on the Navajo Nation.

NAVAJO DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR DR. JILL JIM SELECTED TO SERVE ON THE BIDEN-HARRIS COVID-19 ADVISORY BOARD

The Biden-Harris transition team announced that Navajo Department of Health Executive Director Dr. Jill Jim was one of three more individuals selected to serve on the Biden-Harris COVID-19 Advisory Board, which was created in early November to help advise President-elect Joe Biden and Vice President-elect Kamala Harris on the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Dr. Jim’s extensive public health experience and expertise has been a major benefit for the Navajo Nation throughout the COVID-19 pandemic and now she will serve on a much broader level to help fight this modern-day monster throughout the country. Our Nation’s COVID-19 preventative measures and restrictions put forth by our public health experts have served as a model for other states and entities across the country. I congratulate her and thank her for her dedication and commitment to helping our Navajo people,” said Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez, who recommended Dr. Jim to be appointed to the Biden-Harris COVID-19 Advisory Board.

Dr. Jim was appointed to serve as the Executive Director for the Navajo Department of Health by President Nez and Vice President Myron Lizer at the start of their administration in January 2019. Dr. Jim is an enrolled member of the Navajo Nation, originally from Navajo Mountain, Utah, and a fluent Navajo speaker. She earned a Doctorate in Public Health, a Master’s Degree in Health Care Administration, a second Master’s in Public Health from the University of Utah. She has a Bachelor’s Degree in Health Promotion and Community Health Education from Northern Arizona University. Some of her previous work experience includes serving as a Health Care Analyst for HealthInsight in Albuquerque, N.M., consultant for Navajo Area Indian Health Service, and Epidemiologist for the Utah Department of Health.

“I am proud to serve as a member of the Biden-Harris Transition COVID-19 Advisory Board. I look forward to working with fellow members of the advisory board to help prepare an urgent, robust, and professional response to the global public health crisis, for President-elect Biden to lead with on day one,” stated Dr. Jim.

The Biden-Harris COVID-19 Advisory Board is chaired by former Food and Drug Administration commissioner Dr. David Kessler, former Surgeon General Dr. Vivek Murthy and Yale University Dean Dr. Marcella Nunez-Smith, a professor of internal medicine and a health equity researcher.

The other two appointments announced on Saturday include Jane Hopkins, a nurse who specializes in mental health and a leader of several nurses’ unions and David Michaels, an epidemiologist and professor of environmental and occupational health at George Washington University, who served as an OSHA administrator in the Obama administration and an Assistant Secretary of Energy in the Clinton administration.

“We are very proud of Dr. Jim and all of our public health experts and frontline warriors who are fighting for us and saving lives every day. I am looking forward to supporting Dr. Jim’s role with the Biden-Harris COVID-19 Advisory Board and I am optimistic that the Biden-Harris transition team will continue to consider more members of the Navajo Nation for cabinet and high-level appointments as they assemble their administration,” added President Nez.

NAVAJO NATION BUSINESS AND ARTISANS ECONOMIC RELIEF GRANT PROGRAM PROVIDES HARDSHIP RELIEF FOR OVER 4,000 NAVAJO BUSINESSES AND ARTISANS

The Navajo Nation Business and Artisans Economic Relief Grant Program awarded financial relief from the CARES Act funds for over 4,000 qualifying Navajo businesses, entrepreneurs, and Navajo artisans facing financial hardship and/or business interruption due to the COVID-19 pandemic. These funds are separate from the Hardship Program application, which is being administered by the Office of the Controller.

On Nov. 20, the Navajo Nation Division of Economic Development closed-out the grant program. The program provided approximately $29 million in relief funds to 4,372 applicants. 1,117 Navajo businesses were awarded $13.1 million, and 3,255 Navajo artisans were awarded $15.9 million. The $29 million used for the program was part of the $475 million CARES Act funding package approved through Resolution CJY-67-20, which was passed by the 24th Navajo Nation Council on Aug. 6 and signed into law on Aug. 16 by President Nez and Vice President Lizer.

“Since March, many Navajo-owned businesses and artisans have dealt with the economic downturn due to the pandemic. Many of these businesses face threats of lost opportunities, revenues, temporary shutdowns, and loss of jobs. Under the leadership of Division of Economic Development Executive Director JT Willie, his team put together the $60 million proposal and helped many artisans and small business owners receive economic relief. We appreciate Navajo entrepreneurs participating in the program, and we pray that you have great success,” said President Nez.

Navajo artisans who meet the eligibility requirements received up to $5,000 for “dire financial emergencies,” defined as the lack of imminent endangerment of essentials such as housing, medicine, childcare, and food. Eligible businesses received as much as $10,000 to $60,000, depending on the demonstrated need.

“Many artisans depend on other businesses to showcase and sell their artwork, and we know that many businesses had to close for periods of time due to the ongoing pandemic. With these funds, we want businesses to keep their employees on the payroll, cover some operating expenses, and hopefully create some long-term stability. As a business owner, I understand the impacts that the COVID-19 pandemic has had on operations while we try to maintain our employees as well,” said Vice President Lizer.

Through the application process, NNDED was able to identify a variety of businesses on-and-off the Navajo Nation. The division will further input the new businesses into a catalog of Navajo owned businesses and artisans.

“This process was new and rewarding for us and our Navajo businesses and artisans. While working together, we also gathered data on how many businesses are active on the Nation. I am looking forward to how many of these businesses will grow in the future. As a team, we will also continue to provide technical assistance and resources for these businesses, and we wish them great success. We will get through this together, and our positive impact will be even greater,” said NNDED Director JT Willie.

The Navajo Nation continues to accept applications for the Hardship Assistance Program. The application and award process is not first come, first serve. Every application will be provided equal consideration of receiving up to $1,500 per adult and up to $500 per minor. The application period closes Nov. 30 and payments will begin to be distributed in December.

The online portal can be accessed on the Navajo Nation Office of the Controller’s website, www.nnooc.org, and on the Navajo Nation’s website, www.navajo-nsn.gov.

For specific questions relative to the Hardship Assistance Program, applicants may call the support center at 1-833-282-7248. The support center is open from Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and the support center is closed on Thanksgiving Day. If members are experiencing issues with the call-in number, they can send an email to NNCaresHelp@nnooc.org with their name, issue and a call back phone number.

FLAGS TO BE FLOWN AT HALF-STAFF IN HONOR AND MEMORY OF WORLD WAR II ARMY VETERAN FRED JOHNSON, SR.

Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez and Vice President Myron Lizer issued a proclamation that calls for flags on the Navajo Nation to be flown at half-staff on Friday, Dec. 4, 2020, in honor and memory of World War II U.S. Army veteran Fred Johnson, Sr., who passed away on Tuesday at the age of 103. He was born in Pinon, Ariz. and attended school in Ft. Wingate, N.M. prior to his military service.

“As we mourn the loss of our Diné warrior, U.S. Army PFC Fred Johnson, we also honor and remember all his great sacrifices for our Navajo people and the entire country. During his lifetime, he helped many people through his military service and as a medicine person. He lived a long life full of love, memories, and service to our people. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family and his community,” said President Nez.

PFC Johnson served honorably in the United States Army from October 1942 to December 1946 with the 132 Field Artillery during World War II in Italy, France, Germany, Holland, and Scotland. When he entered the Army, he was a fluent Navajo speaker and did not know the English language, but he later became fluent in English, Spanish, and French.

PFC Johnson’s family recalls his stories of seeing the concentration camps, human remains, and open burial sites during the war.

He was also present in Berlin, Germany when the German military surrendered and witnessed the waiving of white flags by the German military forces.

Following his military service, PFC Johnson began working with the Santa Fe Railroad for over 25 years until he retired. The Santa Fe Railroad representatives visited him at his home in 2017, when he turned 100 years old. He was also a Native American Church roadman and a proud member of the Pinon Chapter Veterans Organization.

“We thank God for the life of Private First Class Johnson and all of the wonderful blessings he bestowed upon people around the world. In every aspect of his life, he was a loving and compassionate person who cared greatly for his people and his family. We ask all of our Navajo people to keep his spirit and his family in your prayers at this time,” said Vice President Lizer.

PFC Johnson was married to the late Glennie Johnson for 59 years, until the time of her passing in 2007. Together they had six children and also cared for several other children from other families. They also have 32 grandchildren, 59 great-grandchildren, and 14 great-great-grandchildren.

“On behalf of the Navajo Veterans Administration, I offer my condolences and prayers for the family of Private First Class Johnson. We honor and remember his life and the legacy that will live on,” said Navajo Veterans Administration Executive Director James D. Zwierlein.

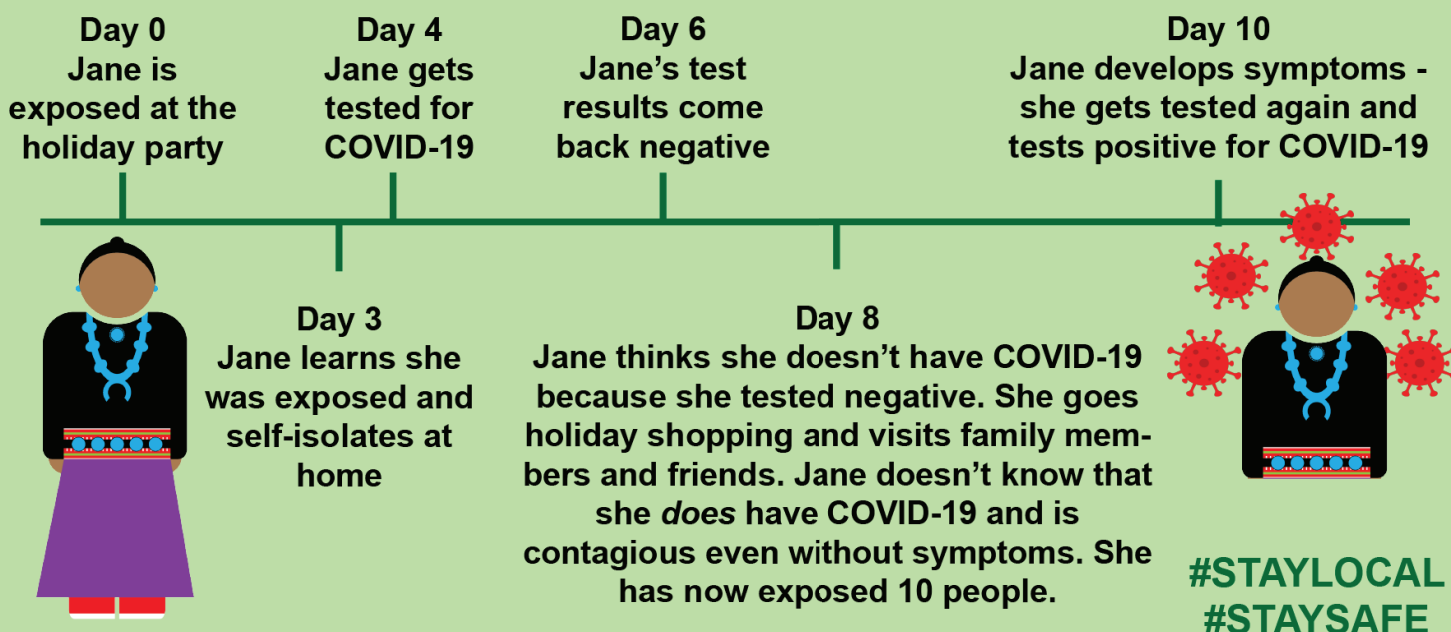

U.S. Army PFC Fred Johnson, Sr. will be laid to rest on Friday, Dec. 4, 2020, at a private gravesite service in Pinon, Ariz. The service will be conducted in accordance with CDC guidelines due to risks related to COVID-19.
